Military and First Responder Mental Health Specialist (Full-time)

Description

As a Military & First Responder Mental Health Specialist, you will play a crucial role in supporting this population through providing therapy and administrative support to the unique needs of first responders, military personnel and their families, and maintaining the relationships with our community partners. Your responsibilities will encompass conducting therapy sessions, psychoeducation, and maintaining organizational relationships (both internal and external) to support our mission of serving this population. Comprehensive support, including regular individual supervision, group supervision, and staff meetings, will be provided to ensure your professional growth and development.

Responsibilities

Under the direction of your assigned clinical supervisor and our Chief Clinical Officer, the Military & First Responder Mental Health Specialist is entrusted with the following responsibilities:

- Conducting comprehensive therapy sessions and psychological assessments with first responders, military personnel, and their families to understand their unique needs and challenges.
- Providing evidence-based mental health counseling and psychotherapy tailored specifically for the specialized needs of first responders and military personnel.
- Identifying culturally appropriate treatment modalities to address the diverse experiences and individual requirements of first responders and military personnel.
- Collaborating with clients to establish therapeutic goals and develop personalized treatment plans aimed at fostering resilience and growth.
- Empowering clients through strength-based approaches, equipping them with resources and strategies to enhance coping skills and gain insight.
- Assisting in the advancement of the Military & First Responder Mental Health program by assisting in the development of a robust team of providers with competence in military and first responder mental health.
- Developing and maintaining relationships with external community partners to create and advance our ability to best serve this population.
- Sharing expertise and knowledge by delivering educational presentations to staff on relevant topics and participating in Continuing Education Unit (CEU) training sessions alongside licensed clinicians.

This role presents an extraordinary opportunity to make a meaningful impact on the mental health and well-being of those who dedicate their lives to serving and protecting our communities within the First Responders & Military Program.
